

HIS ARREST FOR LARCENY REVEALS DOUBLE LIFE

George E. Cook's Wife Gets Divorce in Westchester Court.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Her husband, a convict in Sing Sing Prison, Mrs. Mae K. Cook was granted a decree of divorce to-day by Supreme Court Justice Morchauer from George E. Cook upon evidence obtained when he was arrested for grand larceny committed in the Bronx in October last.

The evidence was furnished by Detective William J. Courtney of the Bronx bureau, who, when he arrested Cook, found him living under the name of Ziegler in an apartment at Nos. 16 and 18 Mayland Place, Manhattan, with a woman who posed as Mrs. Ziegler. A police photograph of Cook was produced in evidence showing that he had been sentenced by Judge Gibbs in the Bronx Supreme Court on Nov. 1 for an indeterminate term of four to ten years for grand larceny.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook were married on Aug. 16, 1915, in Dutchess County, where Mrs. Cook comes from a prominent family. They have one son and his custody is given to Mrs. Cook.

"Your Cretonnes are very attractive"

So begins a written comment on our Upholstery Store by a woman critic.

"The designs seem to have been boiled down to five or six very good designs at nearly every price—values which are very usable, very desirable, and suitable to standard needs."

"There seems to be new life in the department, and I always see a lot of customers there."

"The display is good and makes choice easy—it is a bit crowded, but one sees most of the best patterns."

"The service is excellent."

Everybody Likes a Book for Christmas

People come here constantly to find the books they were unable to secure in other stores.

And lots of other people come in to get a book for some friend, but—"Blessed if I know what he likes to read."

Sir Beerbohm Tree once went up to a ticket office at a railroad station. "What station, Sir?" asked the ticket-clerk. "What stations have you?" asked the great actor absently.

This state of mind is often seen in prospective buyers of books. "What books have you?" they helplessly ask. And no wonder—there are so many books published—and every one is too busy to read them all; or even a small proportion of them.

To meet this situation the Wanamaker Book Store has a group of trained sales people whose job is to read books as well as to sell them. So that when a Christmas shopper wants —a book for grandmother, or Uncle Billy —or Aunt Nell, or little Mary

he or she will receive instant help in the shape of good suggestions for every one of every age and sex by people who know books.
